PLANS FOR NEW PUMP
RECOMMENDED TO COUNCIL

Board of Public Works Meets and Recommends to Council Adoption of Engineer's Plans for Pump—More Time in Which to Pay Water Rates—Council Fails to Meet for Lack of Quorum.

At the special meeting of the board of public works held last evening the plans and specifications of Engineer Craig were presented and a motion was adopted recommending their approval and acceptance by the council, also that the council authorize the advertising of bids on the same.

The board also recommends that the city adopt the plan and specifications prepared some time ago by the engineer for a million dollar reservoir for the upper system, and secure bids on the construction thereof.

It was decided at the suggestion of Mr. Francis that an extension of time be given in which advantage may be taken of the discount on water rates. Hitherto under the regulations governing the water department, a discount was allowed when payments were made within ten days after the conclusion of the quarter. This was felt by some to be a hardship as some of the water consumers did not receive their salaries until after the expiration of the ten-day period, and therefore it was decided to allow hereafter twenty days in which discount might be allowed. This will give sufficient time for everybody interested to have had a payday.

The engineer's specifications for the new pump are as follows:

"Pump to have normal capacity of 350 gallons per minute, pumping from a series of two inch pipe wells connected with six inch suction mains approximately 300 feet long, suction lift 25 feet, and discharging into a reservoir through approximately 6,500 feet of ten inch mains, combined pressure and friction head equal to 250 feet.

"Offers are desired on both single acting and double acting triplex pumps; offers will also be considered on centrifugal pump.

"Guaranteed efficiency together with detailed specifications of materials used and style of construction must accompany bids. Pump to be operated by a two phase 2,000 volt, 60 cycle electric motor geared to pump using rawhide pinions.

"The switchboard is to be marble panel complete with pipe supports on which are mounted on oil brake compensation arranged to open circuit on overload or no voltage. In case compensation is not arranged a special switch shall be provided with suitable relays to open circuit on overload or no voltage. Panel to be large enough to accommodate in addition to above on polyphase watt-hour meter in front, current and potential transformers in rear; panel to be further equipped with one volt meter reading 0 to 2,500."

Bids for furnishing three hundred feet of six-inch pipe were received from the L. E. Swift Co. and the Portage Lake Hardware company and referred to the council.

Council Meeting Adjourned.

The meeting of the council to have been held last evening was adjourned until 8 o'clock this evening on account of the lack of a quorum, due to the illness or absence from the city of several of the members. Mr. Gould of Minneapolis, an attorney representing E. T. Sykes, the consulting engineer who did some work for the city in relation to electric and water plants a couple of years ago, was on hand prepared to make an effort to secure for his client the payment of the sum of $1,500, which Mr. Sykes claims to be due him and which he has several times tried to collect. The city rejects Mr. Sykes' claim, declaring that they had never authorized Mr. Craig to make plans for a water system, only having given instructions for the preparation of plans and estimates for an electric plant. Mr. Sykes claims that the board of public works engaged him to make a complete and comprehensive series of plans for a combined water and electric lighting system, which he did and for which he insists on receiving payment. The matter will be discussed at this evening's session of the council. Sidewalk assessment rolls will be approved and considerable other business disposed of that will make the session one of considerable length and interest.

COPPER COUNTRY HOCKEY LEAGUE MEETS THURSDAY

The annual meeting of the Copper Country hockey league will be held at the Scott hotel. It has been called by President Hawkins to meet at 8:15 o'clock and all the teams of the league are expected to be present. It will be settled at meeting what teams are to be represented in the league this year and many matters pertaining to the affairs of the league will be discussed. That Hancock will be represented and will have a good team in the field this winter is a certainty, but the personnel of the seven is still in doubt, as some of last year's members will be unable to play, and who will be found to take their places efficiently is yet uncertain. Every effort will be made, however, to get together a winning bunch and Hancock will go after the championship with all their old time zeal and energy.

DEER NOW ARRIVING.

Successful Sportsmen Returning With Trophies of the Hunt.

A number of carcasses of deer have arrived during the past few days from various favored hunting sections in the vicinity, but the number is smaller than has usually been the case during the past few years during the opening days of the season. N. W. Harrie and C. A. Grinnell returned yesterday from Baraga county where they have been for a week past, and brought back some fine specimens. Mr. Harrie and Mr. Grinnell each secured two deer, and Fred Levine, of Escanaba, who accompanied them, also got a couple. Dr. Eric C. Hay, who also hunted last week, brought home a deer and the carcasses secured by other Hancock hunters since last Friday and shipped here by express total nine or ten. Charles Wern returned home yesterday without having shot anything, but reports that Mrs. Wern succeeded in bringing down a large buck the first time she went into the woods. A large party from Hancock, which went out last Tuesday to be ready for the opening of the season, came back empty handed, but report that they will go again later in the season. On the same train with them coming in yesterday morning were fifty men altogether whose chase of the fleet-footed forest denizens had been unsuccessful.

INDOOR BASEBALL TONIGHT.

Hancock Hibernians vs. Light Infantry and Elks vs. Eagles.

A couple of good games are scheduled for this evening in the indoor baseball series. The Ancient Order of Hibernians will play the Houghton Light Infantry and the Elks will meet the Eagles. The Hibernians and Light Infantry have both demonstrated themselves as being exceedingly strong teams and the match between them tonight in Germania hall should prove one of the best so far played. The Elks have done good work in the games they have so far appeared in and in view of the showing made by the Eagles last Friday they are expected to vanquish their opponents. The four teams that have demonstrated the greatest strength so far are the Hibernians, the Elks, Knights of Columbus and Light Infantry.

As a result of the recent air blasts No. 7 shaft of the Quincy was partly filled with fallen earth and rock yesterday and hoisting was stopped for a time. The shaft was partially cleared during the day and work was resumed, but with only one skip operating. No. 2 shaft, which was put out of commission a week or so ago, is still idle and the rock which fills it has not yet been removed.

The card party given last evening for the benefit of the Knights of Columbus indoor baseball team at the Kauff hall was well attended and netted a considerable sum to be applied to the expenses of the team during the present season.

Lyman H. Howe's moving pictures were presented last evening at the Kerredge theatre before a large and well pleased audience, which greatly enjoyed the splendid travel views shown and also the humorous films with which the program was varied. The pictures will be shown again tonight, with a change in scenes.

STORM IS WELCOMED.

Heavy Fall of Snow Advantageous to Anxious Deer Hunters.

The heavy snowfall is the cause of much rejoicing among Torch Lake hunters. Previous to this time the woods were so dry that the deer could hear the hunters before they could get close enough to shoot. The snow will materially improve the condition, making it possible for the sportsmen to detect the trail of the deer or to follow a wounded animal. Few local hunters have returned home this fall with deer, although the hunters have been numerous.

Several departed again this morning after the fall of snow and they predict more successful results. Deer are plentiful and the timely arrival of the snow will prove a big aid to the hunters.

WHY SALVES FAIL TO CURE ECZEMA.

They Clog the Pores—Only a Liquid Can Reach the Inner Skin.

Since the old-fashioned theory of curing eczema through the blood has been given up by scientists, many different salves have been tried for skin diseases. But it has been found that these salves only clog the pores and can not penetrate to the inner skin, below the epidermis where the eczema germs are lodged.

This—the quality of penetrating—probably explains the tremendous success of the only standard liquid eczema cure, oil of wintergreen as compounded in D. D. D. Prescription. After ten years of cure after cure, the world's leading skin specialists have accepted this as the true eczema cure.

We ourselves do not hesitate to recommend D. D. D. Prescription at $1 a bottle, but for the benefit of those who have never tried the prescription, we arranged with the D.D.D. Laboratories of Chicago for a special large trial bottle at 25 cents on a special offer now. This first bottle ought to convince every sufferer, and at any rate, it will surely take away the itch at once. Sold by Eagle Drug Store, Red Jacket.

FACTS OF GENERAL INTEREST

Life in a Tree-Top.

In the Wide World Magazine D. O. Steinberger contributes some interesting information as to how he cured himself of consumption by living winter and summer at the top of a great oak tree. Mr. Steinberger's "Camp-a-loft," as he calls it, is situated among the hills and dales of Champaign Co., Ohio.

Mr. Steinberger, who is an artist, has demonstrated to the world that the open-air life is a sure cure for tuberculosis. Three years ago physicians told him he would not live six months, for he weighed less than a hundred pounds, and was sinking fast. As a last resource he went to the state of Colorado.

"You cannot get well here," the Colorado specialists told him, "Go back home."

So Steinberger returned to Ohio—to die, his friends thought. Then in the white oak tree, 70 feet from Mother Earth, the artist established his home.

For three years he has lived in his aerial castle. There, through summer and winter he has slept on a bed of boughs, done much of his own work, received his friends, and breathed the pure air which has brought back complete health.

There are two means of ascent to the top of the tree. By one a spur ladder runs up a neighboring tree, from which a horizontal bridge carries one across to the house-tree, on which the ascent is completed by a scaling ladder. This, however, is too hazardous for many of Steinberger's guests. He, therefore, contrived a "self-dweller's swing," by which visitors can be hoisted aloft by ropes and pulley.

The Slow-Pay Customer.

Learning that it was difficult for his regular collectors to get results in collecting from the Swedish population of the town—of which there was quite a sprinkling on his books—that astute gentleman employed a Swedish collector to corral the payments of his delinquent countrymen. The new collector spent three days in the field; then he came in to make a report of progress.

"Yen Yenson," he began, "hay say pay next week. Ole Olsson, hay say pay ven pay-day com, vich he free vicks of yet, an' Yen Yenson, hay say hay pay in January—"

"Good!" interrupted the credit man. "You've brought the best news I've had today. That's the first time John Johnson has ever promised to pay anything at all."

"Vall," returned the collector, a trifle doubtfully, "hay say it be a tam cold day ven hay do pay, an' Ay reckon hay mean January."

As there is no record handy of the weather in that vicinity for the following winter, it would be hard to say whether John ever found the temperature suitable for the meeting of his obligations or not, but it is certain that if the temperature had been regulated by the feelings of that credit man the cold day would have been a long time.

ORIGIN OF MILITARY SALUTES.

They Were Intended to Show a Person's Intentions Were Peaceable.

The custom of firing a salute in honor of admirals, captains and other naval dignitaries as well as other forms of greeting originated in the desire to show to the person saluted that the saluting persons was unarmed and could do the other no injury.

This was a very important matter in the olden days when most people went to the wars armed and equipped with arms and armor. When anyone approached another it was necessary to assure the latter that no harm was intended, and this sign of good faith was made by the newcomer's handling his weapons in such a way that they would be useless for immediate action.

The present courteous raising of the cap or hat had its origin in the removal of the basinet, or small metal helmet, an act which showed an absence of fear by leaving the head of the wearer open to attack, and which likewise occupied his right hand, so that he could practically make no assault.

The dropping of the swordpoint to the ground now as when the sword was in more active and ready use makes the weapon temporarily of no service, says St. Nicholas. The bringing of arms to "present" in salutation of superiors is a custom of precisely similar origin.

The ancient custom of entering the presence of royalty uncovered likewise originated in the desire for safety. So also did that of retiring backward from the royal presence. In either case the person admitted to the throne, with his sword-arm occupied in holding his helmet, could not easily reach or use his weapons. These precautions in medieval times were very necessary, when it is considered that the king, prince or duke, being seated, would not be able to defend himself immediately or even readily against sudden attack.

The word "salute" itself has the idea of "safety" in it, as it comes directly from the Latin salus, signifying "health," then "welfare." To "salute" is to wish health and safety. The root of the word goes back to the Sanskrit sar which means to "protect" or to "guard."

The Period of Youth.

The ordinary human life is practically infinite in potentialities. The life that we now live is but a mere fragment of what it might be and of what life the future certainly will become after we have once acquired the higher art of living. The average human infant has within him at birth a nervous mechanism that possesses possibilities of development, both in amount and complexity, far beyond that of any member of the race now living. Millions of nerve cells are there all ready to be developed into specialized groups through experience. But our experience is as yet too brief and fragmentary to develop any considerable portion of them.

During the vast period of time man has apparently been at work lengthening out the term of his youth, until now it is a matter of 20 or more years. This period of infancy, and of concomitant nerve plasticity and educability, is briefest in the case of races and of individuals of least intellectual advancement. A survey of human history will show that this important period of nerve growth has been not only lengthened gradually with the rising scale of intelligence, but also that there has been discovered a better method of developing character during this period.—The Designer.

A west of England parson once refused to read the Athanasian creed. The parishioners complained to the bishop, who told the parson he must read it. Now it so happened that the creed may be "said or sung," so on the following Sunday the parson addressed his congregation thus: "Next follows Athanasian's creed, either to be said or sung, and with heaven's leave, I will sing it. Now, clerk, mind what you are about." After this they both struck up and sang it with great glee to a fox-hunting tune, which, having previously been practiced, was well performed. The indignant parishioners sent word hat haste to the bishop about what had happened, but he said he could do nothing, as the creed had been sung, so the parishioners decided to dispense with it altogether in future.—London Opinion.

In a recent lecture in London Dr. Francis Ward said that the power of certain fish to change their color in harmony with their environment resided in their optic nerves. He placed a pike in such a position that its head was in a dark chamber while the rest of its body lay in bright sunshine. The pike remained black in color. But when he reversed its position and caused its head to be in the sunlight its color changed to a very much lighter hue within the space of a few minutes. The light acted upon the optic nerve, thus causing the pigment cells all over the skin to contract and relax.

Naval salutes are interesting to landmen as well as to jock tars. The artillery salute is the survival of one of those ceremonial practices which formerly had some definite meaning, and is meant to signify not only an honor to the flag or representative of a friendly nation but also that the vessel saluting has no hostile intent.

Shotted guns fired by the full armament of the ship were used in the seventeenth century, as it is said: "Now every gun is empty and we are unarmed." Blank salutes became the eighteenth century fashion, but like many other customs of that polished, formal period, were carried to a ridiculous extreme.

When in due time it became the practice to give a special salute to a certain rank or occasion the odd number of guns—in which salutes are measured—was selected in order that the salute might open as well as close on the "honor" side of the ship, the vessel's starboard. When the United States first attained national standing the existing national salute of twenty-one guns was adopted, in accordance with the usage of other countries, by our army and navy.

So in international usage the national salute for every country is of twenty-one guns; while the American national salute, used in our own country, is one gun for every state, forty-six guns now being fired on state occasions. The earliest instance of this domestic salute was that which history records as given at the raising of the first American flag, when Captain John Paul Jones fired thirteen guns, one in honor of each of the thirteen original states.

The number of guns fired in an artillery salute varies in accordance with the rank of the officer or personage saluted. The president's salute is, of course, twenty-one guns. Admirals of the navy, generals of the army, governors of the states, ambassadors from foreign countries, and justices of the supreme court are saluted by a salvo of seventeen guns. Salutes gradually diminish in the number of guns fired until they reach the lowest grade, seven for a junior commanding officer or our consul at a foreign port.

Custom varies in European countries, but all foreign rules have more powder burnt in their honor than is consumed in the American presidential salute. King Edward and Queen Alexandra are saluted with a salvo of 61 guns, and members of the royal family and important state and military personages receive a fewer number, the details of which are of course set by law. Kaiser Wilhelm outranks any other contemporary sovereign, being saluted by the largest amount of noise, the imperial salute consisting of 101 guns. This is the standard for emperors and for some kings. The birth of an heir to the throne of a state is

AIR FLIGHT STARTLES EUROPE.

Berlin and, indeed, Germany as a whole, passed through a period of indescribable excitement and enthusiasm aroused by the remarkable journey, in August of Zeppelin III, the latest creation of the world-renowned aeronaut. Simultaneously all Europe has been filled with serious, not to say anxious thought.

The "Zeppelin III" started on its daring voyage on Friday, August 27th, at 4:30 a.m., with the young Count, Chief Engineer Duerr, Engineer Stahl, two air captains and three mechanics on board; the old Count Zeppelin was to join his airship at Bitterfeld where the refilling was contemplated.

On Sunday at 12:30 p.m. it arrived above the grounds of Tempelhof, Berlin.

Count Zeppelin had promised to describe some loops over the city so that the airship might be visible to anyone desirous of seeing it. Two hours were spent in flying to and fro over practically all the parts of Berlin and its suburbs, while everywhere in the streets the public waited to greet the aeronaut; on all the monuments and even on the roofs could be seen masses of spectators anxious to see the balloon passing. The final landing was effected on the shooting grounds of Tegel, near Berlin, where the Emperor, accompanied by his family and suite, was waiting to welcome and congratulate the daring explorer of the air.

In spite of the accidents that happened on its course and the unavoidable delay the journey of the airship from the Swiss frontier to the German capital had been triumphant indeed. The whole city, which was full of strangers, offered an unusual sight. The doings of the Count were the subject of all the conversations and the feverish excitement was only insufficiently appeased by special editions published at short intervals by the Berlin dailies and distributed, free of charge, in the streets; while papers in other European capitals set Europe to thinking.—December Technical World Magazine.

NO CONTEST WITH YALE.

Penn Has Not Booked Old Eli for 1910.

Philadelphia, Nov. 12.—All speculation and rumors with regard to Yale-Pennsylvania football game next year were put to flight when Head Coach Andy Smith gave out the following statement:

"The statement made concerning a Yale-Pennsylvania football game next year has absolutely no authenticity. Billy Morice, or Doctor Morice, as he was called in the article, had nothing whatever to say to any of the Yale authorities, and furthermore has no authority to enter into such communication. All such arrangements can be made only by a member of the board of directors of the athletic association. And relative to a Yale game nothing whatsoever has been done."

This statement puts at rest all hopes of a game with the Elis next fall, as Smith said nothing has been done by the board of directors.

EVEN MONEY WILL RULE.

Coffroth Thinks "Jim" and "Jack" are Quite Evenly Matched.

"Jeffries and Johnson will go into the ring with even money and take your pick posted about their chances," said Jim Coffroth, the San Francisco fight promoter.

"Either man may be post favorite by a shade. Just which one will be selected on the long end is a matter that late training will decide, but even money will rule during the greater portion of the betting."

Coffroth is admittedly the best judge of prices of boxing matches in the country. The late Harry Corbett, who ran a room where fortunes were won and lost, always consulted the clever huncher of the greatest boxing events in recent years before he opened the betting on any big event. Sometimes the two men differed as to the price. Coffroth was seldom wrong.

Samuel Rogers, the poet, is no doubt a great wit, but he has a turn for malice and even brutality. Some one once asked him why he never opened his mouth except to speak evil of his neighbors.
